CURRENT ASSET MIX

Current Strategy

- On asset allocation, we have reduced our equity exposure (from 43% to 25%) following the banking failures in the US.
- While the fund does not invest in the US, Asian equities will be affected by the contagion in the event of a US banking crisis.
- We took profit in China and Hong Kong and partially allocated to Taiwan and Korea.
- For Sukuk, we continue to favour investment grade space over high yield and prefer GCC sovereign bonds and certain quasi sovereign credits.

Maybank Asian Growth and Income-I Fund

FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

Equities

Asian equities increased by 3.5% in March despite the failures of several regional US banks as the impact of cumulative interest rate hikes took its toll. While Asian equities responded by moving lower, the decisive response by the Federal Reserve to provide liquidity to the banking sector helped to calm the situation. Subsequently, equities reversed course and rose as investors started to price in a Federal Reserve policy cut within the next 12 months.

In Asia, Internet and Electric Vehicle materials outperformed. Singapore and China led the rally as Alibaba Group announced a restructuring plan to split up the group into smaller and more nimble entities. The Financial and Real Estate sectors were the worst performing sectors.

Stocks with Growth factor outperformed while Value stocks corrected as markets rotated their positioning from a higher interest rate environment to one with lower interest rate futures.

In China, Value and Quality factors performed well as they were driven by China's state-owned entity reforms. There was a flight to quality as smaller sized companies underperformed the larger sized companies.

The fund is positioned to benefit from China's economic re-opening with 43% of equities exposure to China and Hong Kong. By sector, our largest exposures are in Information Technology, Consumer Discretionary and Industrials.

FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

Sukuk

Despite increased stress in the banking sector from the US regional banks' fallout, the Federal Reserve (Fed) raised interest rates by 25 basis points in March's FOMC meeting, bring the Federal Fund rate to 4.75% - 5.0%. This underscores the Fed's priority in reining in inflation over looming financial stability risks.

However, Fed has acknowledged that tighter financial conditions stemming from banking stress may feed into economic and inflation outlook. Similarly, markets have also priced in the lower implied Fed fund terminal rate of 4.75% - 5.0% (from as high as 6% in February last month) subsequent to the banking saga.

Consequently, short end US Treasuries rallied as markets factored in the narrative of rates peaking. This resulted in Treasuries US 2-year/10-year curve to steepen to -90 basis points as of end February.

US dollar global sukuk performance was fairly stable amidst the market volatility. Dow Jones Sukuk Index (investment grade only) returned 1.29% in March while S&P Global High Yield Sukuk Index yielded monthly returns of 0.06%.

US dollar performance, as measured by the US Dollar Index, weakened by 2.25% as probability of rate hikes waned.

Oil price (as measured by Brent crude futures) closed the month lower by 4.9% to US$79.77 per barrel in view of higher recession risk and market sentiment weakness.

In March, the portfolio increased its allocation to Islamic money market funds to 11%. As a result, overall fixed income allocation went up to around 62%. Meanwhile, Sukuk portion of the fund returned approximately 1.62% year-to-date.

FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

Outlook and Strategy

The US labour market data is showing some signs of moderation. Notably, non-farm payroll decelerated to 236,000 which may pave the way for the probability of lower rate hikes in May's FOMC meeting.

Notwithstanding that, we believe Fed may bring the terminal rate to 5.0% to 5.25% level, before looking into rate cuts in the 2nd half of 2023, as funding stress in the US banking sector may eventually convert into credit tightness and lead to economic slowdown.

We intend to gradually add duration to the sukuk portion of the portfolio to take advantage of flattening trend as markets priced in higher recession probability. We have participated in recent Sukuk long end issuances, which had performed well given the lack of supply in long end sukuk.

Within the Sukuk rating bucket, we continue to favour investment grade (IG) Sukuk over high yield, in particular high grade GCC (Gulf Cooperation Council) sovereign bonds and certain quasi sovereign credits. Amongst the IG GCC credits, we prefer to position towards UAE and Saudi Arabia. The recent OPEC+ production cuts may improve the fiscal strengths of Saudi Arabia and other GCC economies.

On equities, we reduced our equity exposure following the bank failures in the US. Even though we do not invest in US equities, Asian equities will be affected by the contagion in the event of a US banking crisis.

We took profit in China and Hong Kong, and raised cash with a partial allocation going to Taiwan and Korea.

Although central banks made the correct decisions and averted a banking crisis, we still have to contend with a looming US recession and its potential drag to Asian economic growth. This is likely to offset some of the positives from China's economic re-opening.

The outlook for Asian equities depends critically on upcoming decisions on US interest rates, as it is clear that rates have reached a level that is affecting global financial stability.

As we are near a potential inflexion point in the market, our quant signals may change quickly. We will be following these signals very closely in order to better protect the fund on the downside. In the near term we will be adding equities exposure as market technical have improved and the imminent danger of a banking crisis has passed. However, we will be nimble and react accordingly when the environment changes.
